ARMY OFFICER'S WIFE DIES IN HOSPITAL

Mrs. A. M. M. Williams, Well Known Washington Scoial Circles, Succumbs After Operation.

Mrs. Agnes Maude Miller Williams, wife of Capt. Richard Williams, United States Marine Corps, died at Providence Hospital yesterday morning, as the result of an operation. Mrs. Williams had been ill for some time.

Capt. Williams, who is in Cuba, was notified by cable of his wife's death.

The body probably w#l be shipped to Baltimore, the home of Mrs. Williams' parents. The details of the funeral arrangements have not been made. With Mrs. Williams at the end were her brother and sister and Miss Eliz-abeth Williams, the Captain's sister. They had come to the Capital at once as soon as the serious nature of the

as soon as the serious nature of the illness became known.

Mrs. Williams had a large number of friends in the Capital who are deeply grieved at her unexpected death.

Strikingly beautiful, and of an appealing personality, she had won admiration and friendship everywhere. This was Elizabeth Williams, of Washington, sister of the bridegroom: Miss Credilla sister of the bridegroom; Miss Credilla Miller, and Miss Margaret Sterling. The ushers were members of the Marine Corps, of the navy, and of the army. The home of Mr. and Mrs. Miller at Rogers Station, Md., is one of the most beautiful in the Green Spring Valley, it is known as "Woodswift," and formerit is known as woodswit, and formerity belonged to the Winchester family.

Mrs. Williams is survived by her morning recital of the season at the Ho-tel Raleigh yesterday morning, and the ballroom was crowded with enthusiastilisteners. Mrs. A. M. Blair is doing me exceedingly clever and splendidly thorough work with her chorus. She now has not only a thoroughly trained and loyal body of singers, but she has established an enthusiastic following of ex-pectant listeners, lovers of choral work who intelligently appreciate her reading and the sympathetic response of the chorus. That body of ensemble workers is like a many-voiced instrument, con-trolled and mysteriously swayed by a set to words by Spross. Spross has ex pended a wealth of ingenuity on this ar-rangement. First the low voices sing the opening melody to a hummed accompaniment by the high voices, the accompani ment undergoing some changes from the original; then the high voices take the second theme, the lower voices giving the supporting harmonies. This is re-peated in the high voices, with low voices humming an accompaniment. The third theme is given in close narmony by all the voices. Mrs. Blair has made a careful study of this composition, and a all the voices. Mrs. Blair has made a careful study of this composition, and the chorus gave the work a very satisfying rendition; so much so that a repetition was asked and given.

"Humoresque" with Words. "Mammy's Lullaby," by Dvorak-Spross

The second part of the programme was devoted to a cantata, "The Nightingale and the Rose," by Henry Hadley, words by Ethel Watts Grant. This was the second production of this cantata by the Rubinstein Club. The verses are epictlyric-dramatic, a rhapsody in the speech of birds and flowers, a beautiful poem. The music is in psychological keeping with the poem. If there is an absence of the kind of sustained melody that holds the memory, there are plenty of short motifs and themes of real beauty, and the work-abounds in delicate shadings and tonal gradations.

Mrs. Dayelle T. Welch sang the nightingale's part in this cantata. Her voice is a clear lyric soprano, and she acquitted herself mest flatteringly in some very difficult work.
